You may have just had a new boss, or perhaps your existing boss is particularly ‘challenging’. You’re struggling to build the relationship and so far you cannot tell how they rate you, which is a problem because they have a lot of influence over your future career success. What should you do?

The Influence Up module is designed for anyone who recognises that a close and productive relationship with the boss is essential not just for team harmony but also your own career growth and success.

This fast paced 90-minute online module introduces participants to the latest evidence-based knowledge on how to successfully influence up in an organisation, using a range of skills to help you navigate the corporate hierarchy more effectively and make a positive impact.

Who should attend this module?

Anyone who wants to learn how to build productive relationships upwards in an organisation to drive effectiveness and enhance personal profile.

Module outputs

1. Introduction to a practical influence model
2. Application of practical actions to influence your boss in positive ways and practical steps to manage a ‘more challenging’ boss
3. Recognise the common pitfalls in unintentionally losing influence
4. Access to a highly impactful evidence-led skillset that can be immediately applied in the workplace

What people say about this interactive module?

“ A great module to help you learn how to build your profile and progress your career.”
